

The Electrical Review is responsible for the following: The latest novelty in which electricity plays a part is one of the put-your-money-in-the-slot-and-see-it-go style. It is higher priced than its predecessors, but you get more for your money. This one costs a quarter. You put yourself in a satisfactory position, cock up a proper smile, look steadily at a spot designated, drop in your two shilling piece, wait about five minutes, and a snap-shot photograph comes out complete. In military parlance, the whole is done in one time and two motions. The machine can't make any change but you can make it give you two pictures for one price if you and your girl are sufficiently well acquainted to stand very close together when the quarter goes down the slot.

Oklahoma is a typical American city. It is less than two months old and announces a grand celebration of the fourth of July, which a committee has been appointed to conduct. Excursion trains are to be run to the new city, and the committee confidently announces that 30,000 strangers will visit the place. A great deal of this may be Western brag, but it will have its effect, and the speculators who have lots and claims to sell foresee a fine opportunity to bring sightseers and investors to the new city.

The National Banks of the city of Philadelphia have agreed to lend to the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania, without interest, the sum of one million dollars, to be used in the restoration of the river at Johnstown and the clearance of the wreckage from the stream. The banks will trust to the Legislature to repay them. This is a generous offer, and for once gives the lie to the old saw, that a corporation has no soul, and that money has no heart.

The Brooklyn Times doesn't like the English habit of omitting the article "the" before the names of yachts, named after women. The omission does seem unfortunate when it makes such statements as these possible: "Cora proved slow in her stays," "Grace ran her nose in the mud," and "Alice careened and staggered under her heavy load."

The action of the Commissioner of the General Land Office in the withdrawal of lands from settlement about two miles from Clear Lake, in California, was based upon instructions from the Secretary of the Interior, pursuant to an Act of Congress for withholding lands for irrigation purposes. Further action is expected.

John L. Ayers, on a ranch sixteen miles West of San Fernando, in Los Angeles county, Cal., while under the influence of liquor, was quarrelsome and knocked a man named Gwynn down. Gwynn got up and hit Ayers, who fell, his head striking a block of wood. He died a few moments afterwards. A Coroner's jury held an inquest and decided that Ayers had died a natural death, and Gwynn was released.
